California Races.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—The pacing race at Oakland track was won by the California horse Defiance, in three straight heats over Dan Voorhees and Longfellow. Defiance's best time was 2:19. Dan Voorhees was the favorite.

The McKenzie Incursion.

ST. LOUIS, June 9.—Dr. D. H. Williams, who has resided in Chihuahua two years, has arrived here. Dr. Williams confirms the capture of the Mexican Indian Chief Lazada. It was believed he was immediately shot. Dr. Williams thinks there will be no serious complaint over the McKenzie incursion after the Kickapoo. Williams, however, thinks the Mexicans will use McKenzie's exploit as a precedent and follow home marauders into the United States territory. This will eventually lead to hostilities and plunge the frontier into war. Such a result, would, however, be hailed by many as desirable, as it would lead to the carving out of another fat slice from the sick man on the southern border. There are, however, efforts being made by some of the leading parties on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande which may lead to negotiations for the annexation of more Mexican territory, in order to strengthen the boundary line, and by which Mexico will be enabled to pay her debts.

The territory coveted for this purpose embraces the States of Nueva Leon, Coahuila, Chihuahua, the north end of Durango, Sonora and lower California, known as Mexican frontier States. This would shorten the boundary line one-half of the present meanderings of the Rio Grande and leave a frontier that could be much more easily protected by both nationalities, whereas it is almost impossible to do so with the present boundaries. It would be a vast territory with fine irrigable and mineral lands and pasturage, which are now nearly worthless to the Mexican people.

MURDER OF MODOC PRISONERS BY VOLUNTEERS.

Details of a Horrible Indian Massacre.

Fairchild's Statement of the Affair.

Looking With Covetous Eyes on Mexican Soil.

The Guilty Modocs Recognized in Gen. Davis' Camp.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—Dispatches from the front state that Gen. Davis sent for the settlers to identify the murderers and stolen property recovered from the settlers. These people tell the following story: Mrs. Boddy and Mrs. Schiera took up three quarter-sections of land near the mouth of Lost river last August, and settled with their families. On the morning of Nov. 29th, Capt. Jack's band of Indians were attacked on Lost river by a party of volunteers and compelled to retire. Hooker Jim and his party of Modocs went on the north side of the river from Capt. Jack, but knew of the settlers' defeat, and during the afternoon Boddy and Schiera were murdered by Hooker Jim and his associates while they were cutting wood and herding sheep within a mile of their house, and utterly unconscious of danger. The agent of the Yartox reservation had promised the settlers that any offensive movement against the Indians should be made known to the whites in time to afford them an opportunity to obtain safe refuge, but the messenger sent by the agent failed to perform his duty, thereby facilitating the massacre. The arrival of Boddy's team without the driver and blood upon the wagon was the first indication of the terrible tragedy the poor women received before noon. They found the bodies of the murdered men stripped of all their clothing. At different points within a few miles of their house they also met the Modocs, Hooker Jim, Long Jim, Curly Headed Doctor, One Eyed Mouse, Rock Dove, and Hump Jerry, who were all implicated in the massacre.

Escape of the W. men.

While the Indians went to the house to find other male victims these women escaped and traveled night and day, suffering many hardships and reached the house of Mr. Roffin a completely exhausted condition. Gen. Davis received the women kindly and after hearing their story assigned them a tent and promised to assist them in recovering their stolen goods. This morning Hooker Jim and Steamboat Frank, who had just returned from a scout after three or four missing Modocs, were taken to the tent occupied by these women. Hooper Jim was identified by Mrs. Boddy as one of the Indians concerned in the massacre. In response to some remarks about the robbery of the house, Hooker Jim said that Long Jim took the long purse and he (Hooker Jim) took the short purse. At this point of the interview the women became greatly excited and began crying, when they lost all control of themselves and started in for desperate work.

Widows Avenging their Loss.

Mrs. Schiera drew a pistol and went for Steamboat Frank, and Mrs. Boddy drew a knife and dashed at Hooker Jim. Gen. Davis intervened and disarmed both women, receiving in the struggle a slight wound in the palm of his hand near the thumb by the knife in Mrs. Boddy's hand. The savages during this scene stood like statues, they never spoke nor offered any resistance.

It calls Capt. Jack and his comrades in custody to see Hooker Jim and Steamboat Frank, traveling to and fro at will, and armed at that, he does not understand the consequences of turning States evidence. This afternoon he became greatly excited and gave vent to his rage in a fiery oration. He rose in his chains with scorn, and in a strong and impressive manner recited his grievances, the purport of what he said is told by Scarface Charley. "He is mad," says Charley, "to see that the white men, no trial all alike." He also complained that while in the lava beds a portion of the fellow captives were wailing in their sympathies with him. An officer of the guard came in and compelled him to desist in his wailing.

There are now one hundred and thirty-one murderers under guard here.

Thirsting for Blood.

The Indians were in a wagon drawn by four mules. At the crossing of Lost river, the party encountered a body of Oregon volunteers under command of Captain Hise. The soldiers gathered about the wagon and questioned Fairchild. The latter told them the Indians were all Bat Creek, except Little John and that there were no charges against them. Fairchild undertook to push on to Boyl's camp and the volunteers retired to their camp near Crowley's, on the road. Fairchild noticed two men ahead riding to a rocky point, as if to intercept him. When the train approached two men of them presented a needle gun at Fairchild, saying: "Get down you old white headed!" "By what authority?" said Fairchild. "By mine. I am going to kill the Indians and you too," was the reply.

The leader caught hold of the mules and unhitched them, cutting the harness. Fairchild, clinging to the lines, leaped to the ground. The poor wretches implored for mercy and begged Fairchild to save them. The warriors were unarmed and knew resistance was useless. They were the coolest in the party, although facing death. Fairchild had nothing but a small pistol and six inches from his ear was the muzzle of a needle gun. Fairchild says the tears came into his eyes, and he mingled his entreaties with those of the Modocs in the hope that the massacre might be avoided. He adds: It was a terrible scene, and one I never shall forget. I shudder when I think of what I saw and heard. The fearful voices of those women and children still ring in my ears. But the cowardly hounds were not to be balked. A shot, and Little John lay dead in the wagon, with a bullet in his brain. The mules dashed away with Fairchild, who became entangled in the lines. Five more shots were fired in rapid succession, by which Thee Jack, Parney and Moorh were killed, and Little John's squaw was frightfully wounded in the shoulder.

Away ahead on the road in the direction of Boyle's camp a cloud of dust was perceived, indicating an approach of a team. The murderers espied the dust and shortly afterwards were riding rapidly away. Sergeant Murphy of Battery G, fourth artillery, with ten men and a team, came up to the scene of the massacre. The Sergeant took charge of the affairs and remained with his men on the grounds. Fairchild, a teamster and a wounded squaw with her two children came in at 2 o'clock this morning.

Overcoming the Savages.

BOYLE'S CAMP, June 9.—Gen. Davis proposes to take the cavalry, a light battery of the fourth artillery and infantry and march through the Hamath country, to Forts Worden and Harney and as far north as Walla Walla for the purpose of intimidating the Indians. Preliminary orders for this movement have already been issued.

Guarding the Prisoners.

FAIRCHILD'S RANCH, June 8—2 A. M.—At 8 o'clock yesterday morning, John Fairchild and his brother Burges, together with Bogus Charley and Shacknasty Jim, left here for Boyle's Camp on the peninsula with the Modoc prisoners captured in this neighborhood. There are other Indians lurking in this vicinity and they will likely be captured in a few days.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—Dispatches from Boyle's Camp, dated yesterday, relate the particulars of an atrocious massacre of Modoc prisoners, supposed to have been perpetrated by the Oregon volunteers. On Saturday, James Fairchild and about a dozen other men left Fairchild's Ranch, on Cottonwood Creek, with seventeen Modoc captives, including women and children. Shacknasty Jim, Bogus Charley, Thee Jack, Parney and Little John.

A New Government Formed in Spain.

MADRID, June 8.—President Figueras announced to the Cortes, his determination to return to them the powers with which the Assembly had invested him, as President of the Provisional Government of Spain. He said that the conditions of the tenure of his grave responsibility had become more difficult than they had heretofore been. And citing them to the freshly announced revolt of Gen. Velarde's command and the disastrous troubles between the citizens and soldiers of Granada, he moved the project for the proclamation of a Federal Democratic Republic. This motion was unanimously taken under consideration and awaits only the final approval of the Cortes.

A vote was taken on the nomination of Senator Pley Maragal, the Minister of the Interior, to form a new Cabinet. The result was 142 votes in the affirmative and 50 in the negative. Pending the announcement of the new ministry the Cortes adjourned to 9 o'clock this evening.

MY LITTLE LOVER.

Let me tell you of my lover—
Not the first, I own in truth—
But so like him that I'm carried
Often back to days of youth.
Round my waist his arms are twining,
Calls me every sweetest name,
Looks his love from eyes all shining,
Every day for years the same.
Says he'll never, never leave me
Never wander day nor night;
Think you he can e'er deceive me?
'Tis a case of love at sight.
He brings me water cresses,
Dandelions, violets sweet,
Smothers me with fond caresses,
Kneeling often at my feet.
Pardon pray, this new, old story,
Slay thy blush for one so bold;
Keep the secret I must tell you—
He is only—nine years old.
"LITTLE MAMA."
